Gain a Competitive Advantage

Businesses today need mobile technology to build a competitive edge and bolster the productivity of mobile workers. Socket can help you automate business applications with our award-winning SoMo® 650 handheld computer and extensive range of peripheral devices for data collection, device connection and network access.

For healthcare, Socket offers a Medical Mobility Suite, which includes the SoMo 650Rx handheld computer, barcode scanners, and key accessories. These products feature antimicrobial plastics to provide extra protection to the devices against the multiplication and spread of potentially harmful bacteria and microbes.

For government applications that restrict the use of wireless radios, the SoMo 650DX provides a radio-free option to protect sensitive data from insecure or unauthorized wireless networks.
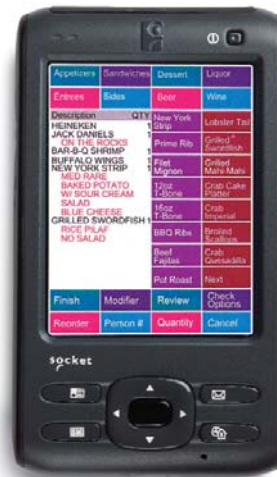

For applications that require broadband access to the Web or private networks, the SoMo 650 Back Pack enables mobile workers to communicate data in real time using a Novatel ExpressCard wireless broadband modem (not included).

Flexible for Future Expansion

The SoMo 650 provides a stable, affordable base platform for application development which you can later enhance with Auto ID and wireless broadband as deployment needs evolve. This flexibility provides a cost-effective alternative to deploying an expensive device overloaded with features that your business may not be ready to use.
