Fund managers' report

- Global fixed income markets posted modest gains in April. The yield on 10-year U.S. Treasuries fell to 1.67%, the lowest level this year, as lackluster data reinforced expectations that the U.S. Federal Reserve was unlikely to reduce asset purchases.
- Australian bond yields fell, led by three-year yields that closed 29 basis points (bps) lower at 2.53%. The central bank cut its benchmark cash rate to 2.75%, citing its concerns over the local currency's strength. In New Zealand, longer-dated bonds led the broader market rally. Policymakers kept interest rates unchanged amid muted inflation.
- Bond yields in Canada were flat, as the economy appeared on track for its fastest quarterly growth since 2011.
- Emerging market debt performed strongly, with both hard and local currency debt posting solid gains. High-beta^h credits, such as Pakistan and Argentina, performed well, whereas Zambia, Ukraine and Angola weakened. In local currency debt, Eastern Europe outperformed the overall market, led by Romania, Hungary and Poland, but Nigeria lagged.
- In currency markets, the Japanese yen fell by the most against the U.S. dollar after the Bank of Japan announced stimulus measures in an effort to revive the economy. In contrast, the euro, Danish krone, New Zealand dollar, British sterling and Swiss franc rose against the dollar.

^h Beta is a measure of the volatility of a security or a portfolio in comparison to the market as a whole.

Important risk disclosure

All performance shown is historical, assumes reinvestment of all dividends and capital gain distributions and does not guarantee future results. Investment return and principal value fluctuate with changing market conditions so when sold, shares may be worth more or less than that of the original cost. Total return based on market price reflects changes in market value. Total return based on net asset value reflects changes in the fund's net asset value during each period. Current performance may be lower or higher than the performance data quoted. This commentary is for informational purposes only, and is not intended as an offer or recommendation with respect to the purchase or sale of any security, option, future or other derivatives in such securities.

Closed-end funds are traded on the secondary market through one of the stock exchanges. The Fund's investment return and principal value will fluctuate so that an investor's shares may be worth more or less than the original cost. Shares of closed-end funds may trade above (a premium) or below (a discount) the net asset value (NAV) of the fund's portfolio. The Net Asset Value (NAV) is the value of an entity's assets less the value of its liabilities. The Market Price is the current price at which an asset can be bought or sold. There is no assurance that the Fund will achieve its investment objective. Past performance does not guarantee future results.

The information presented, was prepared and issued by the Fund based on publicly available information, internally developed data and other sources believed to be reliable. All reasonable care has been taken to ensure accuracy.

International investing entails special risk considerations, including currency fluctuations, lower liquidity, economic and political risks, and differences in accounting methods; these risks are generally heightened for emerging market investments. Fixed income securities are subject to certain risks including, but not limited to: interest rate (changes in interest rates may cause a decline in the market value of an investment), credit (changes in the financial condition of the issuer, borrower, counterparty, or underlying collateral), prepayment (debt issuers may repay or refinance their loans or obligations earlier than anticipated), and extension (principal repayments may not occur as quickly as anticipated, causing the expected maturity of a security to increase).

Important information

Under U.S. tax rules applicable to the Fund, the amount and character of distributable income for each fiscal year can be finally determined only as of the end of the Fund's fiscal year. The Fund anticipates that sources of distributions to shareholders may include net investment income, net realized short-term capital gains, net realized long-term capital gains and return of capital. The estimated composition of the distributions may vary from time to time because the estimated composition may be impacted by future income, expenses and realized gains and losses on securities.
